Hellooooo! It's Swap here! I'm Sweep's cousin, hehehehe! Welcome to the very first edition of Have a Sausage magazine, for all your sausage needs!

It's certainly been an exciting month at Sausage H.Q! I loved trying Sweep's new sausage macchiato, even if his plans were halted by Trading Standards (more on page 25!) But his Brine drink was much more successful, as you'll see on page 13!

Keep eating hot dogs and remember: ketchup is your friend!!!

DID YOU KNOW?!

The first sausages were eaten in Mesopotamia in 2500 BC!

TRAGEDY! DEVASTATION down the CHILLED AISLE!!!

"It's a soopermarket, not a church!" says grumpy manager

A local soopermarket has caused heartbreak after refusing to allow a wedding in its chilled aisle.

The blow came after the bears Sooty and Soo spotted the venue whilst hunting for filming locations for their new series. They'd already hired Reverend Swipe to guest star for a wedding scene, and the vicar rather cunningly suggested using the soopermarket's chilled asile. He flatly denies the rumours that he was driven by his insatiable desire for sausages.

"There's only one thing better than a church aisle, and that's a chilled aisle!" he squeaked. "There's bread and wine at the end of it, so it's perfect for communion too! And if anyone gets hungry, there are lots and lots of sausages to eat! It's a win win! Or should I say, it's a yum yum, hehehehe!"

However, the gang's plans came crashing down when they attempted to stage their wedding scene just as the shop assistant started doing the reductions. The crew were engulfed by a flashmob, and a tug of war broke out over a tasty 30% discounted ciabatta. This alerted the store manager to what was happening, who hurled the gang out of the store in a shopping trolley. "It's a soopermarket, not a church!" he cried, before crowd-surfing his way to the produce aisle.

"Why can't we all just chill?!"

Maureen Clinton, also known as 'Mo from th'market,' witnessed the wedding carnage whilst trying to pay for her white elephants.

"Nay, it's a reet shame!" she moaned. "If yonder teddy bear wants to get hitched next to them frozen peas, who am I to say 'nay'?!"

She then took 10 minutes to explain that, whilst she is indeed known as 'Mo from th'market,' this is not the actual market that she comes from. We did our best to understand her, aided by a translator.

We were also stunned to see that Stacey Solomon had turned up, hoping to reprise her role as the famous reverend from the 2011 series of Sooty. "Why can't we all just chill?!" she asked, before inviting the gang to pose for a photo next to a garden shed she'd discovered. "They can't kick you out of here!" she pointed out, cheerfully.

REV'D SWIPE SQUEAKS OUT...

What does the Bible say about getting married in a supermarket?

There aren't many supermarkets in the Bible, so it's hard to say! There are a few weddings though. There's a really, really big one where Jesus turns water into wine in the gospel of John, and this lasts for days and days! It's not in a supermarket but it's clear that you don't have to be in a supermarket to have fun! I was sad to learn that they probably wouldn't have eaten sausages because they didn't eat much pork in Jesus' time, but there's no reason why they couldn't have eaten sausages made out of other things! I like to imagine that people made their own fish hot dogs at the Feeding of the 5,000!!

Amen.

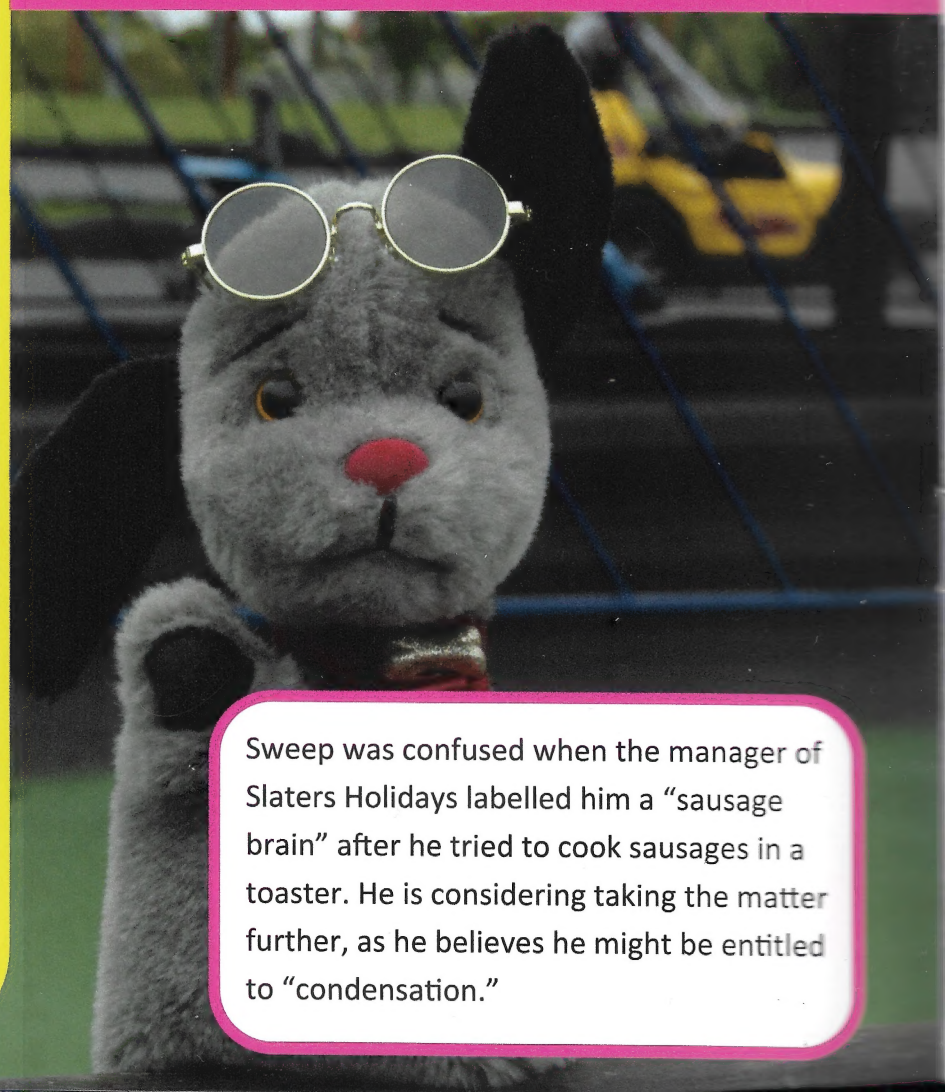
My boss called me a Sausage Brain!

FACT CHECK WITH DOCTOR SOO.....

What is a "sausage brain," exactly?

Simply put, a "sausage brain" is a person (or dog) whose thoughts are dominated by sausages for at least 91% of the time. This is a chronic affliction as it can impair judgement and lead to the individual talking about nothing but sausages - when they're not eating them, that is. Some people even go so far as to decorate their Christmas trees with hot dogs, or attempt to grow "sausage plants" in their back gardens.

Etymologically speaking, it's hard to discern where the term "sausage brain" actually comes from. There is evidence to suggest that it was first used by Matthew Corbett in the mid 70s. We reached out for comment, but Corbett was unavailable due to the unexpected delivery of 2,000 empty cardboard boxes.



Sweep was confused when the manager of Slaters Holidays labelled him a "sausage brain" after he tried to cook sausages in a toaster. He is considering taking the matter further, as he believes he might be entitled to "condensation."

Bratwurst BINGE!!!

Sausages grilled by police!

Fears over sausage supplies loom after a singing dog raids the deli counter

A supermarket was plunged into chaos after Richard put Sweep in charge of the weekly shop. Sweep assured his friend that he was an "expert" and could write his own shopping list.

Unfortunately, on arrival at the supermarket, Sweep raced past the fresh produce and crashed his trolley into the deli counter, leaving a trail of flailing customers on the floor behind him. He made a number of incoherent sounds before loading his deadly shopping cart with strings of Cumberland's finest, showing blatant disregard for the ticketing system.

By the time PC Sooty arrived on the scene, Sweep appeared to be in a state of confusion and was singing "yummy, yummy, yummy, I've got sausages in my tummy!" and had to be lured away with his favourite bone.

PC Sooty confirmed that the police grilled the sausages, which had been impounded as evidence. They plan to eat them in order to learn more about the day's events.

"These sausages are certainly delicious," PC Sooty confirmed, "but I will be writing the shopping list from now on."

Wurst fears REALISED!

A stunned Sweep once turned up at a barbecue to discover that the food wasn't ready. They hadn't even lit the coals.

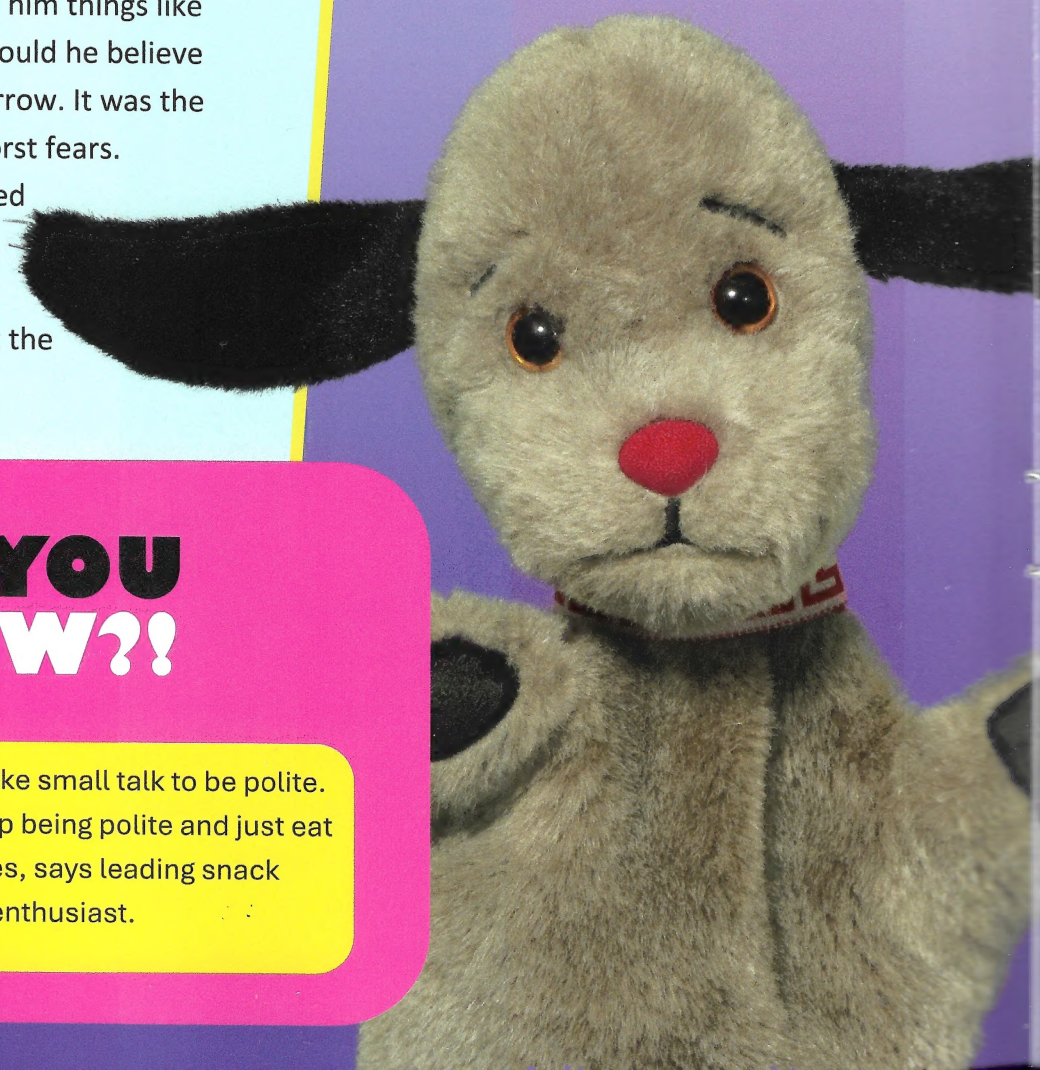
Sweep had been told, very clearly, that the village barbecue would start at 6pm, so naturally he assumed that food would be served as guests arrived.

To his horror, he was invited to "grab a drink and relax" and make conversation with the other diners. They asked him things like how his day had been, and could he believe that it was due to rain tomorrow. It was the realisation of every dog's worst fears.

Eventually, Sweep opted to eat the sausages raw; he reasoned that, as a dog, he would probably be okay. But the memory still haunts him.

SAUSAGE HORROR!

They told me to get there for 6pm, but they hadn't even started cooking!!!



DID YOU KNOW?!

People only make small talk to be polite. They should stop being polite and just eat the sausages, says leading snack enthusiast.

American diners are producing burgers and trying to pass them off as sausages, according to one eye witness.

The offending products are easy to spot. They look nothing like sausages and could easily be mistaken for burgers. They contain many of the same ingredients, but they are blatantly the wrong shape. Everyone knows that sausages are cylindrical, and shouldn't look like frisbees.

There is a real danger, however, that uninformed diners could be tricked into buying these misleading products. Our eyewitness stated that, on the menu, the item was clearly labelled as 'sausage and fries,' but when it came it was round in shape and sandwiched between two pieces of bread. Worse, there were vegetables on top.

We reached out to Sweep, our sausage expert, for comment.

"Aaaaaaaarggghhh!" he squeaked. "It's a burger! It's a burger!"

"Yes we know it's a burger, Sweep..."

"It's a burger! It's not a sausage, it's a burger! A BURGER!!!"

We calmed him down and assured him that this was in America, not Britain, but nonetheless we advise everyone to proceed with extreme caution.

BREAKFAST BLUNDER LEAVES NOTHING BUT EGGS ON THE MENU

Expert chefs Sooty and Sweep decided to overrule Richard and take matters into their own paws - by devising their own breakfast menu.

The pair hatched the masterplan after Richard sent them to bed without any supper the night before, because they'd tried to sell him on eBay.

Unfortunately, what the pair failed to realise was that Richard was in charge of their online delivery, and simply cancelled the sausage order to stop the pair in their tracks.

And so, to their horror, the rebel chefs discovered that there was nothing but smashed avocado, sourdough bread and eggs when they came to instigate their 5am fry -up.

Sooty, resourceful as ever, realised that he could make a range of custard pies to catch Richard off-guard. Sweep, on the other hand, simply stared into space and said nothing. He was still looking blankly at the counter when we turned up to take the photo. If you have any sausages, please contact him immediately.

DECEIT!

Why didn't you tell me they're VEGAN?!

QUORN!

Meal plans go up in smoke after EXPLOSIVE revelation!

Chef Swoop was given the shock of his life after he discovered that he had been serving Vegan sausages - for years!

Chef Swoop takes great pride in his high-profile restaurant: a burger van in a layby just off the M40. Known as Swoop's Soupz, the restaurant sells a variety of hot snacks to passing travellers, including a range of tasty sausage products.

Recently, however, Swoop's Soupz found itself at the heart of a scandal after an OFSAUS investigation concluded that Swoop's supplier was secretly making its sausages out of quorn. The supplier in question - Scampi's Swiss Sausages - has been forced to apologise after becoming a hashtag on Instagrub.

"They're not swiss sausages," the CEO explained, after finishing his homework. "They're swizz sausages. I thought everyone knew! I am so sorry for any offence I've caused. Would you like to try my dog crepes?"

Chef Swoop, devastated by this chain of events, has vowed to take matters into his own paws.

"There is only one solution!" he squeaked. "I will have to eat all of the sausages as soon as they're delivered! That's the only way to make sure they're real!"

OFSAUS were unavailable for comment due to an ongoing investigation into the breakfast menu at a well-known fast food chain.

Wait - it's a SAUSAGE PLANT?!

WACKY CLAIMS FROM SWEEP'S GARDEN!!

Sweep claims to have grown the world's very first sausage plant - despite not sprouting any actual sausages (yet.)

The 'discovery' came about after an argument at the dinner table. Richard told Sweep to stop eating his food so quickly. "Sausages don't grow on trees, you know!" he said.

It was then that a (rather dim) light bulb appeared over Sweep's head. "I had an amazing idea!" Sweep squeaked. "Richard said that sausages don't grow on trees! And he's right! But why don't they?! They should! Sausages should grow on trees! If you can grow apples and oranges on trees, then why can't you grow sausages on trees?!

DID YOU KNOW...?

There is actually a sausage tree called a kigelia africana which produces a sausage-shaped fruit. Sadly, it can only be found in Africa, and the fruit is poisonous - not great for hot dogs!

"I then changed my idea because I had a nightmare that some birds came and ate all my sausages before I could pick them! So I've made a sausage plant instead!"

Sweep's 'invention' came about after painting a leaf that he found on the end of a twig. "It's sausage-coloured!" Sweep squeaked. "The colour will go into the soil and make lots and lots of sausages, yippeee!!"

Sweep's 10 year plan is to create a sausage farm so that he will never have to leave the house, and eat hot dogs all day long. He also plans to sell his sausages to a well-known German supermarket.

"They'll have to call them dausages, though," said Sweep, "because of the copyright!"

‘You have no authority!!’

Soom meeting shambles!

A Soom meeting descended into chaos after the members failed to elect a new chair.

The self-appointed Caravan Council formed 3 years ago to help Sooty, Sweep and Soo determine key matters like when bedtime should be, and who should organise the washing up rota. To date, the gang have been unable to decide who should lead the council.

Matters came to a head when Sweep voted to put his favourite pack of sausages in charge. Sooty waved his magic wand and turned them into eggs, which infuriated the misunderstood pooch.

At this point, Soo lost her temper and declared that she was putting herself in charge of the Caravan Council, as “you pesky boys don’t have a clue what’s going on.”

She then booted Sweep out of the meeting and put Sooty on mute, although it didn’t make much of a difference.

After the meeting, Sooty rightly pointed out that Soo “has no authority” to seize control of the washing up rota, but Soo ignored him as she’s “changed her name to Britney Spears.”

Richard was unavailable for comment as he was seeing his therapist.

WORLD EXCLUSIVE

I've made a drink out of sausages... and it's delicious!

CHEERS!

Sweep poses with his sausage-inspired merch which is set to take the world by storm! Is it a meal? Is it a drink? Who cares!

"There's truly nothing like it..."

I GOT THE IDEA FROM HOT DOG TIN, SAYS SAUSAGE INFLUENCER

Dogs will soon be yowling at their owners to get a taste of Sweep's brand new Brine drink, which hits the shelves this month.

The exciting new beverage uses the water that hot dogs are usually sold in. Sweep quickly saw the untapped potential in this salty refreshment, particularly as it can be modified to taste like a wide range of sausage products.

But how did a single pooch, working at Slaters Holidays, become such a high profile brine connoisseur? Well, it all started after Sweep uploaded a video to a YouTube - a "song" that he'd written using the sounds of a sizzling frying pan. The video quickly racked up views in the tens, and the entrepreneurial dog leapt at the opportunity presented to him with his new-found fame.

"As soon as I reached 11 viewers I knew my life would never be the same again!!" Sweep squeaked. "Actually I think I have 12 views now because Soo clicked the link twice! I think she was trying to close the window, for some reason!

"Anyway, I know famous YouTuberers make their own merchandise, and I'm a famous YouTuberer now, so I need to make my own merchandise!"

But how on earth did Sweep settle on Brine as opposed to, say, his own fashion line?

"It's simple!" Sweep exclaimed. "You can do lots and lots of things with sausages: you can grill them, you can fry them, you can bake them! Why can't you drink them?! I'm fillering a gap in the market, hehehe!"

In developing the product, Sweep enlisted a crack research team consisting of his friend Butch and his panda friend Soo. Speaking of the prototype, Butch admitted it was "not bad, I 'spose," whilst Soo declared that there was truly "nothing like it."

Brine will launch in four exciting flavours: Birmingham Barbecue, Cumberland Crush, Lincolnshire Lemon, and Guiseley Good Times.

We're on a sausage ROLL!

Sooty has angered Tedfordshire Council by running his own farm - and creating a smash-hit TV show.

Sweepson's Farm saw Sooty and Sweep turn their back garden into a farm and start growing their own produce. Sweep converted the shed into a farm shop to sell the fruits of his labours, with the extensive product range featuring everything from hot dogs to sausage rolls.

And whilst the pair aren't raising their own pigs, they have been able to source meat from the nearby corner shop.

Tedfordshire Council, meanwhile, is appalled to have such machinations on its doorstep. "You're not a farmer, you're a TV personality!" yelled Man with Pitch Fork. "And you're certainly not getting a car park!"

Sooty and Sweep, meanwhile, plan to expand their fledgling empire, and are looking into the possibility of growing their own whoopee cushions and custard pies. We wish them luck!

KITCHEN NIGHTMARE!

Soo chef SPILLS THE on SAUS

A chef has made the controversial decision to completely ban sausages from her kitchen, with immediate effect.

Soo, of Slaters Holidays, made the call after the unwanted weiners started appearing all over the caravan, and she's "had enough."

"That dozy dog!" said Soo. "Honestly, I can't go anywhere without being confronted by silly strings of sausages. There are sausages in the sink, there are sausages in the washing machine... I even found a string of sausages in the bath tub! Sweep was dousing them in soap suds and singing to them. He said they were like his children, which is ridiculous because, the last time I checked, parents tended not to eat their own children with ketchup!!"

"There was nothing for it. I tried to find Richard, but he was too busy to help because Mr Slater had sent him to polish the rollercoaster rails. Therefore I took matters into my own paws and banned sausages from the caravan altogether. If that sausage brain wants to sing to his dinner, then he can do it at the burger van!"

At the time of writing, Sweep is still trying to extract the offending sausages from the caravan. He was playing hide and seek with them, and he can't quite remember where they've all gone.

BEANS

SAGE BAN!!!

The Soo chef's decision has been met with widespread criticism, mostly by members of Sweep's family who hail the dog "the sausage messiah."

"He's not the messiah," said Soo. "He's a very naughty dog!"

Sweep, meanwhile, is still in a state of shock after being told that he won't be able to watch TV with his favourite bratwurst.

SHOCKING!

"How can I watch Game of Bones or The Grilling without my hot dogs?!" he squeaked. "I think Soo is ill because she isn't thinking clearly! I need to cheer her up and make her well again! Errrrrrrrr... I know, I will send her a bunch of flowers, except the flowers will be sausages! She'll get the surprise of her life, hehehehe!"

Richard still hasn't returned to the caravan to take charge of the situation. As we understand it, he has been called in for a disciplinary meeting with Mr Slater after failing to make his face visible in the reflection of the rollercoaster rails.

REASSURANCE FOR SAUSAGE LOVERS

Sooty, in solidarity with his best friend Sweep, dressed up as the king to reassure dogs everywhere that Soo's sausage ban will not extend beyond the walls of the caravan - despite the Soo chef decrying that she "wished sausages would be wiped from the face of the Earth!"

"Sausages play an important part in the mind of any dog," he whispered. "To bratwurst boffs everywhere: we hear you. Would anyone like a sausage custard pie?"

SAUSAGE PROBLEMS SOLVED!

BUTCH EXPLAINS ALL....

Q: If you can't get real sausages, will Vegan ones do?

A: Uh, I mean, they're not technically sausages, but they're the right shape I 'spose, and they taste the same. Should be alright. Just don't make a habit of it, yeah?

Q: The deli counter is selling a new type of sausage, which claims to have cheese in it. What should I do?

A: Uh, right, now I've heard this one before. All kinds of people are claimin' that you can mix cheese with your sausage ingredients. But these ain't burgers, pal, these are sausages. Wouldn't trust 'em, myself.

Q: I've fallen in love with a dog named Pongo. We're perfect in every way, except that he can't stand the sight of sausages. He says he'd rather dig up vegetables in the neighbour's garden. Otherwise, he's the sweetest dog I've ever met. Can I still love him?

A: No.

Q: My owner missed sausages off their shopping list. It's happened two times in a row now. Should I confront her?

A: Uh, I'm sorry, but there's no excuse for this kind of behaviour, pal. Nobody in their blinkin' right mind misses sausages off their shopping list two times in a row, you know what I'm sayin'? It's deliberate, innit. Yeah you should definitely confront her and make your unhappiness known. I recommend barkin' when she's asleep. Giver her a night to remember!!

Q: What's an acceptable amount of time to sit and wag your tail before an owner gives you sausages?

A: Cor blimey, I'm sick of being asked this one. Them owners think they own you, makin' you sit and wag your tail before givin' you food. Cor, give me strength! I'd say, three seconds max. None of this codswallop about sittin' around for hours and hours.

Q: I like to sing to my sausages at bedtime. Is that normal?

A: Depends on the song, doesn't it. Anything by Cliff Richmond should be fine.

Q: Can you have a full English breakfast without sausages? I'm asking for a friend. There are so many nice ingredients - mushrooms, beans, bacon, and they're cheaper. It's okay to take sausages off the menu from time to time, right?

A: No.

Q: I've become friends with a sausage on social media. How long should I leave it before I eat him?

A: Uh, you wanna cut to the chase, pal. There's no time for friendship when sausages are involved. Put some oil in the frying pan and have the ketchup ready. A sausage's life purpose is to be eaten, innit. You're doing him a favour at the end of the day. The quicker you can cook him, the better.

QUESTION OF THE MONTH!

If I stare long enough at an empty dinner plate, can I manifest sausages into existence? Cumberland, ideally.

A: Right, I get where you're coming from. This is every dog's dream, innit - they all want to be able to 'wish' sausages into existence. But you can't, pal. The world don't work that way. Your best bet is to make a cute whining noise and give your owner them puppy dog eyes. Works a treat most of the time. Just make sure you make the right kinda whining noises, otherwise they'll 'treat' you to a walk in the park, or something 'orrible, and you don't want that. Sausages are the only acceptable reward. You've earned 'em, pal.

A plane powered by SAUSAGES?!

Airline's meaty business plan fails to take off...

Experts Sooty and Sweep have been sent to their rooms after trying to fuel a light aircraft - with sausages.

"I have always wanted to run my own airline," Sooty whispered, "so I approached Sweep to see what he thought. We couldn't afford the fuel, so we decided to burn sausages instead. They smelled delicious!"

Richard shouted at the pair after the inaugural flight crashed into the bouncy castle at the local OAPs' tea party, and deflated it.

CABIN SOO SPEAKS OUT!!

'Those pesky boys!'

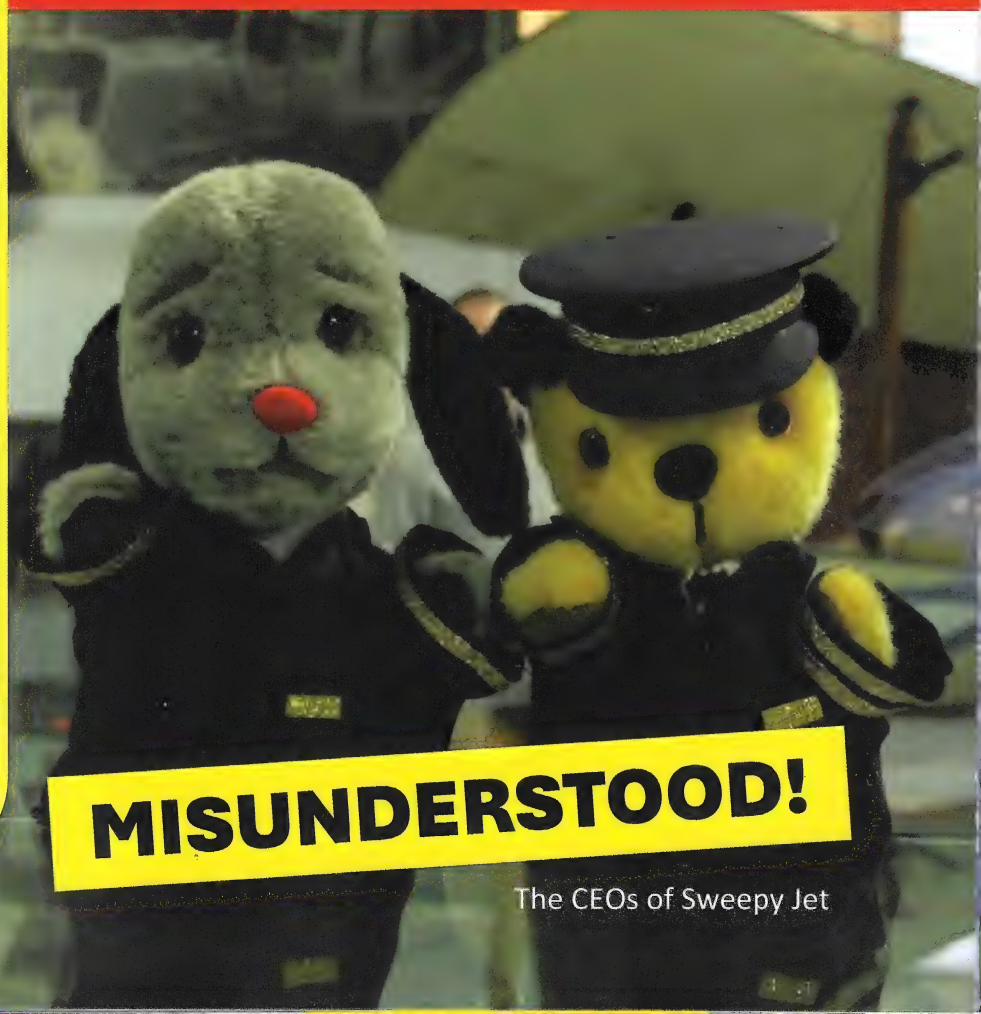
"Honestly, it's one thing after another with those pesky boys," said Soo. "This wasn't so much as a brain wave as a sausage brain wave!"

Why, then, did the panda agree to get involved with SweepyJet in the first place?

"Well I was concerned for the boys' safety," Soo admitted. "I saw Sweep trying to replace the aircraft propellers with sausages, and I knew they were going to be in for a bumpy ride. Therefore, I volunteered to be their 'cabin Soo' for the very first flight."

And what was the experience like?

"Brief," said Soo. "I tried to serve up a complimentary bag of pork scratchings, but by that point we were already being intercepted by Mr Slater's Boeing F-22 Raptor."



MISUNDERSTOOD!

The CEOs of Sweepy Jet

I had a VISION... of a MAGIC SAUSAGE TREE!!

Sweep is still in a daze after having a dream about a magic sausage tree, which spoke to him.

The four year-old pooch received the vision after a drinking a sausage-fudge sundae before bed. There were sausages on every branch, and the tree spoke to him in a deep voice. "These sausages are pork," it reassured him, "and they've been grilled..."

Sweep is convinced that the magic sausage tree must exist somewhere, and is urging people to keep their eyes open.

"I have sold the movie rights to my dream!" said Sweep, "Soon everyone will know about my sausage experience!"

CAN IT BE?! Confused dog saw bratwurst instead of branches!

DREAMS SHATTERED!!

'Sorry, your sausage macchiato is ILLEGAL!!'

A budding entrepreneur has been stopped in his tracks after his sausage-infused beverage was branded "disgusting" and "illegal" by the fun police.

The controversial drink came about after Sweep (4 years old) discovered that none of the major coffee chains were selling drinkable sausages, despite his persistent campaigning.

After being forcibly removed from one outlet (after several days of squeaking) Sweep decided to take matters into his own paws and, in true entrepreneur style, solve the problem himself.

"It's a sausage macchiato!" Sweep declared. "You can have it with Worcestershire sauce or ketchup, or mayonnaise if you're Vegan!" (We're not quite sure what he means.)

Unfortunately, after 70 reported illnesses and a damning Dispatches documentary presented by Louis Theroux, Trading Standards was forced to intervene and shut down Sweep's operation - shattering his dreams in the process.

"I will never give up!" Sweep vowed. "Coffee and sausages belong together! In fact, sausages belong with everything! I'm currently on the phone to Nestlé!!"

He promised me SAUSAGES - then gave me a BURGER!!

Sweep makes a real meal out of teddy bear's broken promises

Sweep was left staring at his dinner plate after Sooty's promises of a "sausage banquet" failed to materialise.

"Sooty said that all my sausage dreams would come true!" Sweep squeaked. "It was more like a sausage nightmare because as soon as I arrived at the dinner table, there was a huge burger sitting on my plate! It even had onions in it!!"

According to Sooty, the last minute change came about after being struck by a "spontaneous flash of inspiration."

"I was thinking about all the different ways I could splat Richard with a custard pie," said Sooty, "and then I realised: burgers are the same shape as custard pies! Not only can I surprise Richard with burgers, but I can also cook them for our tea! I was so excited!"

This excitement was not shared by Sweep, however, who now plans to Soo the teddy bear for his misleading dinner claims.

"I have thought about it very carefully and I am going to ask Soo to speak to him!" said Sweep. "That way he will never cook me burgers again!"

Sooty appeared unmoved by this revelation.

SWEEP

Psychic Sweep is an expert at predicting your sausage future. Will you get breakfast in bed? Will the butcher be generous this week? Will sausages be Buy One Get One Free at the soopermarket?!

Psychic SAUSAGES

Your sausage outlook PREDICTED

VIRGO 23/8 - 21/9

Be careful when you order this week's hot dog. You think the chef will have onions, but all he'll give you is ketchup! You should make your own hot dogs instead, and buy a delicious tin of sausages from the soopermarket!

SAGITTARIUS 22/11 - 21/12

You will try a new type of sausage this week! It's vegan but it's still very tasty. You even try it between two slices of sourdough bread, and you excitedly start to plan next week's menu! But you must be careful!

PISCES 19/2 - 20/3

You learn an important lesson about strings of sausages this week. You leave them lying on the kitchen floor and you trip over them and bang your head. Even worse, you ruin your sausages! Don't ruin your sausages!!

GEMINI 21/5 - 20/6

Somebody will offer you a ticket for the sausage lottery. YOU MUST ENTER. There are sausages to be won, and you must win them, and eat them!! You must fry them in a pan and don't grill them or you'll lose all the goodnessness!

LIBRA 22/9 - 21/10

You'll have a wonderful sausage surprise this week! A very nice friend will turn up with a spare full English breakfast sandwich and ask if you want it! You'll get ketchup everywhere, but it will be delicious. Yippee!

CAPRICORN 22/12 - 20/1

You get confused at the deli counter this week. You suddenly forget the difference between chorizo, black pudding and actual sausages and you start to panic. Be on the safe side and just buy everything!!

ARIES 21/3 - 19/4

You get invited to a BBQ this week, but it's raining! You almost say no because of the rain, but you have to BE STRONG! Just think of the sausages and they will give you the strength to be brave and not worry about getting wet!!

CANCER 21/6 - 22/7

You will get a message from an old friend call Greg. They run a shop that sells sausage rolls and must go! And then go to the shop next door, run by another Greg. And then go to the shop next door run by another Greg!

SCORPIO 22/10 - 21/11

You'll feel a bit sad when you see someone throw a very nice sausage sandwich in the bin! You'll shout at them but they'll say they're just not hungry! You won't be angry, you'll just be disappointed with their bad behaviour.

AQUARIUS 21/1 - 18/2

You're going to win some money this week, yippee! You might want to spend it on clothes or a holiday or the MOT but it's important that you spend it sensibly and BUY LOTS OF SAUSAGES because sausages are the answer.

TAURUS 20/4 - 20/5

You run out bread for your sausage sandwich and all you have in the cupboard is a tortilla wrap!! When you bite into it, the sausage falls out of the bottom and splatters on the kitchen floor! HAVE LOTS OF BREAD IN THE HOUSE!

LEO 23/7 - 22/8

Your ketchup gets spilled this week, but there's no point crying over it! What will you put on your sausages?! You should try meted chocolate! Or ice cream! Your sausages are your friend and they deserve THE BEST!!!
